Postscript's out, in case you didn't get the memo. To celebrate 20 years in business, Japanese beauty brand HMK are looking ahead instead of reflecting back. The FF Future "fast forward future" collection, created in collaboration with designer Taro Horiwaki and expertly applied here by CLM signing Pablo Rodriguez, hones in on colour and texture for AWTTI. Known for his masterful tailoring and daring mix of prints, it's no surprise the HMK collaboration picks its pigments and takes inspiration from fabrics. Five eyeshadow palettes in the collection each come with a silvery white shade taking note from the gradients in leather, silk, wool, cotton and velvet, while the ingenious Lipate Eyeliner EX makes sharp definition easy in wintry, metallic colour ways. FF Future Cheek Stick highlights and corrects tone. Didn't realise you needed a true-based blush until now? You can thank HMK.

Lightyears ahead, IMK commemorates their 20 year history with the most covetable collaboration.
